:ellent nevve ballet, made in the praiſe and ›mmendation of moſt noble and famous Game of Arch ae, incour: all men to the godly vſe of Bowes.

our Bowes ye worthie harts,
narch vnto the field:
gh valiãt ſtrokes of flying dart
utelt Stake ſhall yeld.
then ſhooting is,
.t commodities:
ur in exercife,
maine hand.
ons in memorie
; acts of Chiualrie,
æne done through Archerie,
:he Sea and Land.

es, bowes, bowes,
ring the worlds dayes,
liſh men for Archerie,
ll haue the fame and praiſe.

us Princes of this coſte,
ſte their Martiall prowes,
ie Battailes wonne and loſte,
ier praiſed bowes.
h our Engliſh men excell,
s that on earth do dwell,
e bowes ſo wõdrous well,
ot ſo nære the pinne.
ie is gone the world through,
the Scottis at Edinbrough:
e of bowes hath bæne inough
aile for to winne.
wes, bowes, bowes, &c.

aiſe the Gunne and Cannon ſho
ttes long morriſh pikes:
s at hand are good ye wot,
we that all downe ſtrikes.
ing Steed made to the warre, eare and Shield right valiant
ach the entinie a farre, earce a Tyrants breſt.
ie defence in each diſtreſſe,
raine foes this oppreſſe:
ion in ſuch readineſſe,
owes and Arrowes preſt.
wes, bowes, bowes, &c.

ous actes done long agone
ugh Archers valiant prowes
e examples many a one,
ſuntient letters ſhowes.
ſes Chronicle doth tell,
ning Gods people Iſraell, mightie Nation fierce & fell,
which could handle bowes.
t of bowes the great treaſure,
Adams raigne haue bæne in vre:
e of warre a weapon ſure,
t leareth much the foes.
Bowes, bowes, bowes, &c.

en Dauid for life was fled,
murthring hands of Saull:
a Caue had coucht his hed,
e what would befaull.
s did with him agree,
ting out of Arrowes three:

Whether he ſhould abyde or flee,
the place wherein he lay.
And as they did in talking ſtand,
Betwixt them there they made a band,
And Dauid fled out of the land.
ſo holpe him God that day.
Bowes, bowes, bowes, &c.

More of this famous exercife,
who liſteth for to looke:
The Kings of Englands Hiſtories,
in the Chronicle book,
Shall finde examples many fold,
Right worthie to be ſet in gold,
So much eſteemde in time of old,
this goodly games haue bine.
Edward the third, is not forgot,
Warring vpon his foes full hot:
So valiantly his Archers ſhot,
fiue Battels he did winne.
Bowes, bowes, bowes, &c.

Henry the fifth, of high renowne,
waging great warres in Fraunce:
Of which Province the regale Crowne